Michelle, Kelly
and Beyoncé took the stage together in Las Vegas on March 28.

Destiny's Child MEGABUCKS REUNION

BEYONCÉ AND HER FORMER GROUPMATES WILL HIT THE ROAD AND THE STUDIO TOGETHER — IF HER FATHER DOESN'T GET IN THE WAY.

THE crowd at the annual Stellar Gospel Awards must have thought they were witnessing a miracle when Beyoncé, Michelle Williams and Kelly Rowland — former members of the superstar singing group Destiny's Child — took the stage together on March 28 at the Orleans Arena in Las Vegas, to perform Michelle's song "Say Yes." Now their legions of fans around the world are saying "Yes!" to reports of the trio making plans for a massive, moneymaking 10-year-reunion tour and album that would make the $71 million they garnered in the U.S. for the 2005 Destiny Fulfilled tour seem like "a drop in the bucket," says an insider.

The only problem: Beyoncé's estranged father and former manager, Mathew Knowles, 63, who still owns a 25 percent controlling interest in Destiny's Child. "Beyoncé and the two other women don't want anything to do with Mathew," the insider tells Star, "and they'd have to figure out how to keep him out of the project."

ROADBLOCK

Besides his interest in Destiny's Child, Mathew also previously managed the individual careers of Beyoncé, 33, Michelle, 34, and Kelly, 34. But by 2011, all three had cut ties with him after accusations arose that he had stolen money from his daughter.

During their appearance at the Stellar Gospel Awards, the three women were introduced by their own names, rather than as Destiny's Child — by design, since Mathew still has his business interest in the group, says the insider, who adds: "They may have to forgo the name for their reunion tour and album as well, to keep Mathew from taking a cut." ★

BAD DAD?

An insider claims that Beyoncé's estranged dad and ex-manager, Mathew (shown with the group in 2000), could hinder a potential new tour and album by the trio.

BRUCE COMES OUT OF HIDING

THE TRANSITIONING REALITY STAR
MADE HIS FIRST PUBLIC APPEARANCE
SINCE GETTING BREAST IMPLANTS.

FROM highlights and manicures to a shaved Adam's apple, Bruce Jenner has continued to shock fans with his increasingly feminine appearance as he transitions to a woman. But the Olympic champ and father of six debuted his most drastic change yet: breast implants!

On Easter Sunday, Bruce was photographed hiking in Malibu with red nails; it was the first time he's been spotted since having the procedure. "He couldn't be happier with the implants," a source tells Star. "They're a C cup, so they aren't too big — and he's sure that once he completes the transformation, they'll look perfect. He also had a couple of small procedures done to his face."

But clearly, the 65-year-old isn't quite ready to show off his new shape — he stayed bundled up despite the scorching Southern California heat, in hopes of going unnoticed. "Bruce was nervous. He wants to show them to the world on his own terms, and that will happen soon," explains the insider.

Bruce, who has been cared for postsurgery by his sons Brandon and Brody at his Malibu home, halted the TV spin-off documenting his transgender transition after he was involved in a fatal car crash on Feb. 7. The tragic incident resulted in the death of Kim Howe, who was killed when Bruce hit her Lexus from behind and her car careened into oncoming traffic. The accident continues to take a heavy emotional — and now possibly financial — toll. Kim Howe's stepchildren have obtained lawyers and are planning to sue Bruce for wrongful death, which could result in a huge financial hit for the reality star, as his liability insurance only covers $250,000 in damages.

For now, though, Bruce seems to be focused on the future. On April 24, ABC will air his much-anticipated interview with Diane Sawyer. "Bruce is really looking forward to telling his story himself, in his own words," says an insider. "He doesn't want this to be about fame or the Kardashians. He knows that there are thousands of people struggling like he did for so long, and if he can help just one person, the interview will be a success." ★

Still Undercover

Not only was Bruce trying to go incognito during his hike, but he may have also been covering up a few new nips and tucks on his face.

DRIVEN TO DRINK?

FAST STARS FURIOUS MICHELLE BLAMES PAUL For Her Partying

Nearly two years after Paul Walker died in a car crash, his Furious 7 costar Michelle Rodriguez is telling anyone who will listen that the tragedy thrust her into a yearlong binge of booze and sex. But her livid costars know that she's been hitting the bottle for years.

"Michelle has been a hard partyer for a long time and wasn't nearly as close to him as she pretends," reveals a source close to the cast. Michelle had a number of legal issues as a result of her heavy drinking, long before Paul's death: She spent time behind bars twice in 2006 and then again in 2007, all for cases that involved DUI charges. "She's not fooling anyone who actually knows her or Paul," adds the insider. "She just wants people to excuse her behavior. It's terrible." ★

SUKI'S MANY SUITORS!

Forget pints of ice cream and Netflix binges. Suki Waterhouse hasn't exactly been down in the dumps since her split from Bradley Cooper. The 23-year-old model simply hasn't had time — her phone has been ringing off the hook! "Bradley would be shell-shocked to learn how many men are thrilled with the breakup," dishes a source close to the British beauty. "Suki's loving the attention, but she doesn't want to jump from one relationship to the next." Could these A-list lovers change her mind? ★

BRADLEY WHO?

LEO DICAPRIO

"Leo's used to getting what he wants — and right now, it's Suki," says the source. "He's a pretty determined guy when it comes to women, and he's made it his mission to hook up with her."

HARRY STYLES

"Harry has had a crush on Suki for a long time," notes the insider. "They hang in the same circle, and he keeps making his buddies invite him out when she's out so he can chat with her."

TOM CRUISE

"Tom thinks she's adorable and is on the prowl for a new wife," dishes the source. "There's a big age gap, but Tom thinks that if she'd date Bradley, he'd have a shot too."

SURI & SHILOH NEW BFFS!

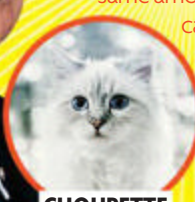

When it comes to A-list playdates, it looks like opposites do attract! At the Kids' Choice Awards on March 28, Angelina Jolie's daughter Shiloh, 8, made a new bestie in Katie Holmes' glamour gal Suri, also 8.

"Suri was shy at first, but Shiloh is really outgoing — during a commercial, she started talking to Suri, and they became instant friends. It was adorable," says a witness, adding that Suri also made a connection with Shiloh's sister Zahara, 10: "Zahara complimented Suri's bag, and they totally bonded over their love of clothes." Even their famous moms ended up hitting it off. "They seemed happy that their kids were getting along," the source said. "They talked about setting up a get-together for the girls and exchanged numbers." The playground had better watch out — there's a new power clique in town! ★

$4M

The amount of money Karl Lagerfeld says was earned in 2014...by his cat, Choupette, thanks to just two modeling gigs: a Shu Uemura cosmetics ad and Vauxhall Corsa car calendar. That's about the same amount earned by catwalker Cara Delevingne, who starred in more than a dozen shows and campaigns!

SUZANNE'S RHOBH DREAMS

Dancing with the Stars contestant Suzanne Somers is hoping to fox-trot her way onto The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills! "Suzanne's been told that a couple of Housewives might be getting kicked off, and she thinks she would bring something new to the show," a source says. The 68-year-old is banking on her DWTS stint to make her relevant enough to hobnob with the likes of Lisa Vanderpump and Kyle Richards. "She doesn't want people to view her as the ditzy blonde from Three's Company forever!" explains the tipster. "She'd like for people to get to know her. And if that means stirring up a little drama, so be it!" ★

Dancing With The Stars Dirt!

CHARLOTTE WORST CONTESTANT EVER?

Before getting eliminated, Charlotte McKinney insisted that she wanted to be known for more than her buxom bust — and she succeeded. Thanks to her poor attitude, the Carl's Jr. model earned a rep as the most ungrateful contestant in Dancing history!

"Everything was an issue for her, and her heart wasn't in it," snipes an on-set insider. "She was high-maintenance and miserable to work with." Judge Len Goodman even called her out on her bad attitude. "You get out what you put in," he chided her. "Everybody is busy, everybody's got other jobs, you've just got to get out and dance."

Backstage, things didn't get any better for Charlotte, who was overheard whining about whether she "really had to talk to these people" during her exit interviews. "It was probably a good thing that she got the boot," says Star's insider. "All she did was complain." ★

GETTING MARRIED!

Rob & Twigs

ENGAGED!

The “crazy in love” pair are getting hitched after dating for only five months!

WHAT about Bella? Twihards were heartbroken when news of an engagement between Rob Pattinson and FKA twigs was inadvertently revealed by T-Pain! Even though the rapper recanted the revelation as an April Fools’ joke, a source says the pair are genuinely engaged and that Robert, 28, is serious when it comes to making the singer-songwriter, 27, his wife.

“It’s been a whirlwind, but they’re madly in love. He can’t stand for them to be apart and will fly across the Atlantic from his film sets just for one night with her,” a source tells Star. “His family couldn’t be happier that he’s finally found a smart and caring girl who loves him for him. He’s crazy about her, she feels the same way and they’re excited about what the future holds.”

That doesn’t mean the duo — who only began dating in November 2014 — will be making a public announcement. “They didn’t make this promise to anyone but themselves, so they don’t see the need to release a statement,” the source says. And when the couple do exchange vows, there won’t be a splashy Hollywood wedding. Instead, expect a low-key ceremony at home in England — twigs has already checked out venues in the countryside outside Cheltenham in Gloucestershire, where she grew up, and she’s planning a honeymoon in Jamaica, where her dad’s from.

One thing the lovebirds will have to work around is their busy schedules; twigs is touring the U.K., the U.S., Portugal and Spain until the beginning of August, and Robert has a number of films in production. “They are looking at having the wedding in the fall or around Christmas,” says the source. And as for T-Pain, who spilled the beans to Vulture.com when explaining why twigs couldn’t contribute to his new album, the source jokes: “They’ll definitely be keeping him out of the loop!” ★

Harry & Cressida

IT'S ULTIMATUM TIME

DESPITE two breakups, wartime separation and plenty of drama, Prince Harry can't seem to break away from actress Cressida Bonas. On March 25, the prince was spotted in the audience, enthralled, as he watched Cressie, 26, in a London performance of The Importance of Being Earnest. While some have brushed his attendance off as friendly support for an ex, sources say that, with these two, it's never that simple. "Cressida has always been the one woman who Harry could never get out of his mind," explains a royal insider. "She has a lot of pull over him, it's why they're always breaking up and getting back together." Having recently announced that he'll be leaving the military in June, speculation is rife that Harry, 30, may be trying to get back together with the blonde beauty; but sources close to her say that, this time, she'll only play if it's for keeps. "Cressida is adamant that if they're going to give it another shot, Harry needs to be serious," says a Bonas bestie. "She's not an accessory to keep him company just because it's hard for him to meet someone new. Unless there's a proposal with a ring attached, then she's simply not interested in wasting another year of her life." ★

Eva Mendes'

SECRET MEETUPS WITH EX

New parents Eva Mendes and Ryan Gosling have been relishing the first months with their daughter, Esmerelda, but the 41-year-old actress has also been enjoying secret meetings with her former boyfriend of eight years, Peruvian director George Augusto!

"Ryan is completely in the dark about how much time Eva actually spends talking to George," snitches an insider. "He knows they're in touch because George has a stake in her housewares business, but he doesn't realize they talk at least a couple of times a week and still meet up from time to time." According to the source, "Whenever Eva has a problem, George is her go-to guy. She loves talking to him and getting his advice. She just won't come clean about it to Ryan." Now, that sounds like license for Ryan, 34, to give Rachel McAdams a call! ★

HOLDING A FLAME?

Benji

COSTING CAM MILLIONS

Rom-com conqueress Cameron Diaz, 42, has made a mint over the years with movies like Bad Teacher. But her husband of three months, Benji Madden, 36, is urging her to start rejecting her moneymaking roles in favor of indies. "He knows he's out of his league when it comes to Cameron, and he's deeply paranoid about a better-looking costar stealing her away," says a pal. "Cameron's so crazy about him — and adores what she calls his 'sweet jealousies' — that she's seriously considering giving up her role in Bad Teacher 2. She's lapping up his talk of her being 'more like Meryl Streep,' even though it's going to cost her some serious cash." Then again, after a bomb like Sex Tape, how much convincing does she really need? ★

Will & January HEATING UP!

JANUARY JONES is officially dating funnyman Will Forte! The pair, who first worked together when the stunning Mad Men star, 37, hosted Saturday Night Live in 2009, reconnected when January joined 44-year-old Will's Fox sitcom, The Last Man on Earth. "It's still a pretty new thing, but they have an impressive amount of chemistry," says a friend of the actress. "The way to January's heart is to make her laugh, and Will does that constantly. Plus, he's a good guy."

January, who has previously dated Jason Sudeikis and Ashton Kutcher, and most recently her Sweetwater director Noah Miller, has been known to hook up with coworkers from her various projects. "She always meets her boyfriends on set," says a friend. "Maybe it's because she's acting and has her guard down, so she's more open then. But she's definitely having a good time with Will." ★

Selena

DUMPED!

Selena Gomez has been looking miserable on the Georgia set of her new movie, In Dubious Battle, and a source confirms her troubled love life is to blame. The actress/singer, 22, found love with European music star DJ Zedd, 25, in January and finally appeared to be over her nasty breakup with Justin Bieber. But, according to the source, her high-maintenance attitude and needy nature quickly drove Zedd away. "She'd call him all the time and get upset if he didn't drop everything and answer. Zedd is tired of dealing with all the drama," explains the source. "Zedd was supposed to go out to Georgia last week to visit her, but he had to cancel because of a gig. Selena flipped out, and they had a huge fight. He's been avoiding her calls ever since." ★

Orlando & Rosie's WILD NIGHT

Orlando Bloom may want to watch his back after partying alongside long-legged model Rosie Huntington-Whiteley — with her buff action star beau Jason Statham nowhere in sight! A witness spotted Rosie, 27, and Orlando, 38, joined at the hip at The Nice Guy lounge in L.A. on April 3. "Orlando and Rosie were talking really close to each other," says the source. "They were being superflirty and touchy-feely. It was obvious there was a lot of chemistry there. If that were my boyfriend with another single girl, I'd be livid!"

After leaving the Hollywood hotspot, the duo drove separately to nearby karaoke bar Blind Dragon to keep the party going. "Jason learned that Rosie and Orlando partied together from a concerned friend," says an insider. "He's not happy — and will probably have words with Orlando the next time he runs into him." Hopefully for Orlando, it stays at just words! ★

William & Kate's

BABY

AS THE WORLD BREATHLESSLY AWAITS THE BIRTH OF A SECOND ROYAL BABY, WILLIAM AND KATE ARE BLISSFULLY READY TO BECOME PARENTS AGAIN.

NOT long now!" Those were the words Duchess Kate uttered in mid-March, as she entered her final month of pregnancy. With her second baby's reported April 25 due date fast approaching, Kate and her husband, Prince William, are in the final throes of preparations for another life-changing event.

Meanwhile, speculation and intrigue surrounding the new royal baby are running rampant, with bettors waging money on every aspect of the infant, from its gender to its name to even its hair color. But one thing is for certain: William and Kate are blissfully excited about their upcoming arrival. As William put it during his wife's last public appearance, on March 27, he "couldn't wait another minute" for the baby to be born.

As the couple relish in their final days before their family of three becomes four strong, Star has the inside scoop on how they're acclimating young Prince George to his new role as a big brother, Kate's plans for the birth and the decidedly unroyal treatment they have in mind for the baby during its first few weeks of life.

CALM BEFORE THE STORM

With her royal duties on hold for the foreseeable future, Kate, 33, is finally getting a chance to relax a bit. Escaping from the chaos of the city and all the hype surrounding her pregnancy, Kate, William and George have moved into Anmer Hall, their country home, which is a two-and-a-half-hour drive east of London. Her parents, Carole and Michael Middleton, have relocated there as well, to keep her company and lend a helping hand in the weeks leading up to the birth.

But even amid the scenic tranquility of the secluded estate, 21-month-old Prince George has kept Kate's hands full. She and William, 32, have been working overtime to prepare their son for his sibling's arrival. "They've been showing George pictures of himself as a baby, and they've pulled out his old infant outfits so he can see how small the newborn will be," a source close to the couple reveals. "And one of Kate's best friends has a 3-month-old whom George loves to help with."

Kate has been spending as much one-on-one time with George as she can before the newborn pulls her

Serenity Now

The family are currently staying at their country home, Anmer Hall. "Kate is enjoying the peace and quiet," a source says. "It's the last bit of downtime she'll have for a while."

Having grown up in Bucklebury, Kate feels most comfortable recuperating there.

Michael and Carole helped to raise George in his earliest days too.

FAMILY FEUD: CHARLES VS. THE MIDDLETONS

Kate's decision to spend the first six weeks of her new baby's life at her parents' home, Bucklebury Manor, is rubbing some royals the wrong way. "Prince Charles makes no secret of his annoyance that he's hardly ever invited to see George," royal author Nicholas Davies tells Star. And with the second royal baby bonding with the Middletons during his or her crucial first weeks, William's dad is said to be fearful that the divide between the two families will only deepen.

However, friends say that William and Kate's priority is to give their children a relatively "normal" upbringing, despite their royal pedigree. "Charles has a difficult time understanding that, because he's from a different status. He says there will be certain expectations on Prince George when he's older, so why not begin teaching him about them early," says a family source. "Wills, Kate and George spend so much time with the Middletons, Charles is no doubt feeling jealous. He's hoping that perhaps with baby No. 2 it will be different. But it's not starting out well, considering the first place they'll go is to the in-laws' home."

"They never let me see my grandson," Charles has complained.

attention away. On March 19, she took him to the London Science Museum, where the pair explored toddler-friendly exhibitions about shapes, plants and animals. "They also picked out some gifts for George," the insider reports, "so he doesn't feel left out when the baby arrives."

As for William, he is trying to be as hands-on with George as possible these days, but he's also busy with his new job as an air-ambulance helicopter pilot. While he won't officially begin emergency-response operations for a few months, allowing him precious time with his growing family when the new baby arrives, he is currently going through mandatory training with his company, Bond Air Services. When the time comes, however, nothing will keep him from being at the hospital for the birth of his second child. "He's on high alert; he'll be by Kate's side no matter what," the source says. "Wills has been really sweet lately. When he last met with his grandmother, she mentioned that Kate's looking healthy. He responded by saying, 'She's nine months pregnant — she's beautiful!'"

THE DELIVERY

The next time Kate will be seen officially in public is likely to be on the steps of the Lindo Wing at London's St. Mary's Hospital — where Prince George was

IS KATE THINKING PINK?

Unlike with George, Kate and William chose to learn their new baby's gender before the birth — they just aren't publicly saying if it's a boy or a girl. But some think that the duchess' propensity for wearing pink these days is a sign that the newborn will be a girl! In fact, more than 70 percent of gamblers placing bets via U.K. bookmakers William Hill are wagering their money on a girl. They're also betting on baby names, with Alice the clear favorite, at 3:1 odds. "Meanwhile, the Queen is pushing for them to name the baby Margaret, after her sister," a source says. Here are a few of the popular bettors' picks:

Frontrunner: Alice

Other girl names: Diana, Elizabeth, Charlotte, Victoria

Possible boy names: James, Arthur, Henry

born in 2013, and where Princess Diana delivered both William and his brother, Harry, in the 1980s — with her baby girl or boy in her arms. The hospital boasts world-class service, offering maternity patients luxurious private rooms, chef-prepared meals and even wine and champagne postdelivery. The cost for such high-level care starts at $8,000-plus for the first day — though Kate will likely pay significantly more for an exclusive suite, which is only available by application.

Given the “perfect” delivery she had with George, Kate is hoping her second childbirth experience will be a close repeat of the first. She is likely employing the same elite medical team, Doctors Alan Farthing and Guy Thorpe-Beeston, and she’s planning another natural birth. With George, she refused an epidural at the beginning of her 11 hours of labor. “She’s heard the second baby generally comes quicker than the first, so she thinks if she did it without an epidural the first time round, she can do it again,” the source says.

As for moral support, William will be the only family member by her side in the birthing suite, as Kate’s mom, Carole, will be busy caring for George. And well-wishers are expected to wait until the royals are released from the hospital before coming to see the baby.

Once they leave St. Mary’s, though, Kate and William will break from royal tradition once again — as they did following George’s birth — by spending the infant’s first six weeks at the Middletons’ home, Bucklebury Manor, in Berkshire, instead of at Kensington Palace. “Before Kate, there was no way a royal mother would have been allowed to abandon the palace and go home to Mum to raise the future king or queen,” royal author Nicholas Davies, a friend of the late Princess Diana, tells Star. But insiders say the princess is adamant that this is what she wants, and William is standing by her decision. “Whatever will make Kate happy, he’s OK with,” says a source. “It’s a very emotional and exhausting time, and if she wants to be home with her mom, then so be it.”

AND BABY MAKES FOUR

The soon-to-be parents of two are shunning royal tradition in other ways too. For one, they are forgoing the help of a nanny or baby nurse in the early days, choosing instead to throw themselves into the sleepless nights and never-ending diaper changes wholeheartedly. “They didn’t hire help with Prince George until he was 2 months old, and they don’t want to this time either,” the insider explains. “Those were difficult weeks, as George was a hungry and demanding baby, but it was a bonding time for them as a family. They want that experience for the new baby too.”

But, as most parents of multiple children will attest, raising two kids is exponentially harder than raising just one — a fact of which the duchess is well aware. “Kate has said if things get too hectic, she may break down and get a night nurse,” the source continues. In fact, it’s Kate’s mom who’s been suggesting they hire help earlier this time around. With the help of Kate’s sister, Pippa, and brother, James, however, the second-time parents should have little trouble making time for their littlest bundle of joy.

Still, the media frenzy that accompanies the birth of any royal baby has the family — and the whole nation — on edge. “It’s definitely not as crazy as with George, but it’s still a huge deal,” says an insider, pointing out that photographers were camped out at the hospital as early as three weeks before the birth of Prince George. “The people love William and Kate, and they can’t wait to get the first glimpse of their second baby.”

That’s why, the source speculates, down-to-earth Kate and William are eager to retreat to Bucklebury once their second-born child arrives: so they can enjoy their time together as a family away from the circus of palace life. “During those first few weeks, especially,” the insider says, “they really want to feel like a normal family — not royalty.” ★

A Bad Match

"Sonni made Jeremy's life a living hell," says an insider. "He was constantly worried about his daughter's safety and never knew what his wife would be up to next."

Jeremy Renner

BLACKMAILED BY HIS WIFE?

EXPLOSIVE NEW COURT DOCUMENTS ALLEGE THAT JEREMY'S EX-WIFE WAS A DEADBEAT MOM WHO MARRIED HIM FOR MONEY AND A GREEN CARD, THEN THREATENED TO RELEASE A COMPROMISING VIDEO IF HE DIDN'T PAY UP.

HIS BEST PAL TELLS ALL

It was Jeremy's best friend and roommate, Kristoffer Winters (right), who filed the court declaration that blew the lid off Sonni Pacheco's alleged plan to extort money from Jeremy in exchange for not releasing an embarrassing video. Jeremy and Kristoffer, who have been "like brothers" for more than 20 years, are well known in Hollywood for flipping houses together.

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES
In re Marriage of:	CASE NO. BD 612 249
Petitioner: S. PACHECO	PETITIONER'S EVIDENTIARY OBJECTIONS AND MOTION TO STRIKE PORTIONS OF DECLARATION OF KRISTOFFER WINTERS DATED MARCH 16, 2015
and
Respondent: J. RENNER
DECLARATION OF KRISTOFFER WINTERS
I, KRISTOFFER WINTERS, hereby declare as follows:
baby would be considered a United States citizen and because a marriage to Jeremy would improve her financial situation. I heard Sonni say at least five or six times when we were together at the Franklin house that Jeremy should be nice to her and not fight her on green card or money issues or else she would release intimate videos of him to TMZ.]

Jeremy with Kristoffer Winters.

When Jeremy Renner secretly married Sonni Pacheco in January

2014, it had all the hallmarks of a modern Hollywood union. The ruggedly handsome Avengers star had apparently fallen for a young, beautiful model from Canada. As is increasingly the custom, they had gotten pregnant first — and 10 months earlier Sonni had given birth to a beautiful baby girl, Ava Berlin. At 43, Jeremy seemed to have hit a trifecta: a booming career, a beautiful young wife and a darling child.

Then, just 11 months later — in another scenario all too common in Hollywood — Sonni filed for divorce. As celebrity splits go, it was mercifully fast, but recently filed court documents reveal a nightmare relationship in which Jeremy entered into a marriage he almost certainly knew was doomed — all in order to keep a baby that his wife, who never loved him to begin with, tried to abort...twice. When that marriage finally fell apart, Sonni allegedly attempted to blackmail him, threatening to release “intimate videos” of the Oscar-nominated actor unless he gave her more money.

ANGLING FOR A GREEN CARD

Jeremy and Sonni’s relationship, as it turns out, was anything but romantic. After meeting on the set of Mission: Impossible 5, where she had been serving as a stand-in, they had a brief fling, but it was only after Jeremy learned she was pregnant that they decided to reunite. She moved into the home he shared with a close friend, actor and interior decorator Kristoffer Winters. According to Kristoffer’s court declaration, that’s when the truth about Sonni’s intentions hit home. “Sonni told me that she did not believe in marriage and only wanted Jeremy to marry her so that she could become a United States citizen,” Kristoffer said. On one occasion, he even found Sonni watching videos of her ex-boyfriend, whom she called “the love her life.” But the situation was even more cynical than that. Kristoffer said that he witnessed Sonni making two separate appointments to have an abortion.

“I believe that she ultimately changed her mind both because the baby would be considered a United States citizen and because a marriage to Jeremy would improve her financial situation,” Kristoffer stated. “I heard Sonni say at least five or six times...that Jeremy should be nice to her and not fight her on green card or money issues or else she would release intimate videos of him.”

It seems unfathomable that Kristoffer wouldn’t share all of this with Jeremy, yet Jeremy still married her. She was, after all, carrying his baby.

A DANGEROUS PREGNANCY

According to Kristoffer, Sonni’s pregnancy and early motherhood were anything but healthy. “Throughout her pregnancy, I saw Sonni regularly smoke cigarettes and drink alcohol,” Kristoffer stated. “During the time she was breastfeeding, I saw Sonni...drinking about a bottle of wine per day.” Kristoffer says that he rarely saw Sonni get up in the mornings with Ava, and she took at least two solo trips to Canada for “alone” time. “Upon her return from one of these trips, she told me that she spent only an hour with her family and spent the rest of the time partying and doing cocaine with friends,” Kristoffer stated.

In what seems to have been the final straw, on Sept. 26, 2014, while Jeremy was away on business, Kristoffer says that he received a text message from Sonni saying that she was out for the evening. Apparently, she erroneously thought Kristoffer was looking after the baby, but he was out himself. Kristoffer rushed home to Ava, later stating: “I believe that Ava was left alone for approximately 15 minutes.” Less than two months later, Sonni filed for divorce.

EXTORTION THREATS

Even though Sonni had signed a prenup, she wanted a new, better divorce settlement. And if Kristoffer’s statement is true, she believed that those “intimate videos” of Jeremy gave her the leverage she needed to get it.

What was in the videos? Though Jeremy’s rep denies it, one friend speculates, “Jeremy sometimes wears makeup when he is not in front of the camera, and it was talked about that he sometimes likes to wear feminine clothes.”

Whatever Sonni had on Jeremy, it appears to have failed. No doubt thanks to Kristoffer’s statement, Sonni isn’t getting any extra money, and Jeremy has joint custody of his beloved daughter. “The only thing I’m thinking about when I’m not with my baby is, ‘How do I get to my baby,’” he has said. “I need to get to her, and I’m very miserable when I don’t see her. I really love being a father.” ★

Jon admits that he was helped in his early 20s by seeing a psychiatrist in his native Missouri.

Jon Hamm's DAR

IN March 2012, Mad Men hunk Jon Hamm sat down for a webcast interview with actress Marlo Thomas on her lifestyle website to discuss the hot-button topic of bullying. "It's a problem," said Jon. "It exists when individuals let it exist. And it really just takes one person to say, 'That's not OK.' It's an extension of adolescent immaturity and insecurity.... It's what little kids do, and it's what adults do. There are bullies in the world. And the only way to stop it is to stand up to it."

Admirable sentiments, indeed — but ones that Jon, 44, apparently didn't arrive at until later in life. As Star has exclusively learned, Hamm didn't "stand up to it" in the early morning hours of Nov. 10, 1990, as his frat brothers physically and mentally abused a pledge while Jon was attending the University of Texas at Austin. In fact, he was a central figure in the vicious hazing that became a lightning rod in the state for reform in dealing with the often brutal ritual — and led to Jon and several frat brothers being criminally prosecuted.

GOING TOO FAR

Jon was in his sophomore year at UT-Austin and was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity at the university when the frightening hazing took place.

The pledge, a junior premed student, received a call at 2:30 a.m. to come to the Sigma Nu house. When he arrived, according to Travis County (Texas) Court documents obtained by Star, Jon — who was present with a number of other members, and who "accompanied [the pledge] throughout most of the incident" — told him, "It's going to be a long night!"

Over the next two hours, according to allegations in the documents, Jon and the other members struck the pledge with a wooden paddle more than 30 times. Jon and another member also lifted the pledge completely off the floor by his underwear and “pulled it back and forth in a sawing motion,” causing “great pain.” Jon then led the pledge to the ground floor “Pit,” where he pushed the pledge’s face into the bare dirt while he was doing push-ups — and was suspected of having twice stepped on the pledge’s spine with his “full weight.” Jon then set the pledge’s pants on fire with a lighter “and would not let [the pledge] extinguish the flame with his hand but made [him] blow it out.”

Finally, the pledge was taken to the “Party Room,” where Jon “hooked the claw of a hammer underneath his genitals and led him by the hammer around the room.” The documents also allege that on that same night, Jon broke into the apartment of another pledge “in order to bring [him] to the fraternity house” to subject him to “similar hazing activity.”

BOMBHELL

Reportedly, the mother of the first pledge later received a call that her son was “in trouble,” and found him “hiding in a closet at his apartment, his buttocks and legs black with bruises.” The pledge begged his mother, “Don’t let any of the others

SCHOOL OF HARD KNOCKS

Jon had already left the University of Texas at Austin for his home state of Missouri, according to Travis County (Texas) Court documents obtained by Star, when he was issued a 1992 summons (1) to return and face a charge of assault in connection with his central role in a brutal hazing incident at the school two years earlier. A 1991 affidavit for warrant of Jon’s arrest (2) spelled out in gruesome detail the acts (3) that Jon and a number of his fellow frat boys had allegedly perpetrated on a pledge in November 1990.

All hell broke loose after the mother reported the incident. Arrest warrants were eventually issued for Jon and seven other members of the frat, which was shut down on the campus. Three of the members were eventually sentenced to up to 30 days in jail for hazing violations — the first such convictions in Texas. Jon, who left the school in 1991 and went back to Missouri, was eventually hit with misdemeanor hazing and assault charges. They were finally dismissed in 1995 after he reached a plea deal “in another case,” according to the documents.

After he returned to Missouri, family members encouraged Jon — who recently spent 30 days in alcohol rehab — to see a psychiatrist because he was depressed and “bummed out,” as he recalls. “I gotta say, it helps.... It’s invaluable, I think,” Jon has admitted. A friend tells Star: “The hazing was an isolated incident in Jon’s life. Since then, he’s been strong enough to take steps to make himself a better person.” ★

A Private Crisis

After finding out about Dean and Mary Jo, Tori confided in her brother, Randy, that she felt “trapped” in her marriage, a source says. “She believes that her only way out would be to get emotional and financial and support from her mom, Candy.”

HOOKS UP WITH HIS EX!

TORI SPELLING COPEs WITH THE NEWS THAT DEAN McDERMOTT STILL WANTS THE WIFE HE LEFT FOR HER.

SECRET LUNCH DATE!

He Made A Mistake

Enjoying a private lunch — and hug — at Le Pain Quotidien on Feb. 9, Dean confided in Mary Jo that he wishes that he stayed with her. Though he's worried that Tori might keep him from seeing the kids if she left him, Dean "still wants to win Mary Jo back," an insider says. "He thinks he made a mistake by leaving her."

family life and posting photos of herself cuddling Dean. But it's all a façade. She doesn't know what to do."

A PASSIONATE APOLOGY

Tori, 41, learned of the shocking secret rendezvous in February, when Mary Jo spilled the beans on Brandi Glanville's Unfiltered podcast. "About a week ago, Dean, my ex-husband, apologized to me," Mary Jo, 52, revealed to fellow wronged wife Brandi during the candid interview. "There had been no apology for years and years and years. He came to my house, off camera, and I went into the kitchen to get him a coffee and turned around and he was right behind me."

When Brandi asked Mary Jo if her ex-husband had made a move on her, she coyly replied, "A little bit. Wouldn't you?" To Tori, the insider says, Mary Jo's words were like a knife in the heart. After all, Tori has repeatedly claimed that she and Dean, 48, are "soul mates" — and that his decision to leave his wife and son for her after a whirlwind affair on the set of the Lifetime movie Mind Over Murder was based on true love. Hearing about his lingering feelings for Mary Jo — with whom he also enjoyed a secret lunch in February — left Tori feeling both confused and devastated.

And indeed, insiders say that it was the stress resulting from heartbreak — not "severe migraines" as she claimed — that led to the actress' hospitalization in early March. "It's become clear to Tori that Dean was after her for her money," the insider says. "She doesn't recognize the man she married. She's disgusted that he could go to his ex-wife, at a time when they are supposed to be working on fixing their relationship. She wants to leave him but is terrified of being a single mom."

A TOXIC MARRIAGE

Tori and Dean's marriage may very well be beyond repair. Back in 2013, the pair were rocked by reports that Dean had cheated with a woman named Emily Goodhand. The couple's Dean has claimed that he and Tori are in a better place. But insiders say he's simply trying to put on a front for their four children, Liam, 8, Stella, 7, and Hattie, 3, and Finn, 2 (not shown).

POSING with her husband Dean McDermott and their four kids outside an Encino, Calif., Benihana restaurant on Easter Sunday, Tori Spelling tried hard to make it look as though she and Dean were closer than ever. But sadly, Star has learned, nothing could be further from the truth. Though Tori has been posting "happy family" pictures on Instagram and claiming that Dean has given up his cheating ways, Star has learned that several weeks ago, Dean made her worst nightmare come true by hooking up with his ex-wife, Mary Jo Eustace, whom he left for Tori nearly nine years ago. And Tori may never get over the humiliation.

"She's heartbroken," an insider says. "She's trying to put on a brave face, but she's at a complete loss as to how to deal with it. She's throwing herself into ongoing arguments, mistrust and, ultimately, couples therapy sessions were documented on the cringe-inducing reality show True Tori — a move many believe did more harm than good. Recently, Dean announced that he no longer wants to be a part of the show — a sentiment he echoed in private with Mary Jo, the source reveals. "He says he feels like an embarrassment and called himself a laughingstock," the insider says. "Leaving Mary Jo for Tori is Dean's biggest regret in life." And these days, regrets seem to be the only thing he and Tori have in common. Says the insider, "They'd be better off apart." ★

THE Ra

THE E! NEWS SUPERSTAR'S SKIN-AND-BONES BODY IS CREATING A TERRIFYING TREND AT THE CABLE NETWORK.

GUILIANA RANCIC has finally admitted what Fashion Police fans have known for a long time: She is too skinny. "I am really thin," she concedes. "I want to look fit and beautiful and sexy. I can't." It's a message that apparently hasn't been received by her E! News costars Ali Fedotowsky and Catt Sadler, as they fear being unfairly compared to her. "No TV personality wants to stand next to a virtual toothpick for an hourlong TV show?" an insider tells Star. "Even a healthy person looks heavy when they are side by side with her. So now everyone on the set is being negatively affected. What's worse is that no one talks openly about what's going on."

Giuliana, 40, was diagnosed with cancer in 2011; she claims the medications she takes make her unable to put on any weight and that denies her weight issues are related to unhealthy behavior. But as far back as 2009 her emaciated figure came under scrutiny, leading many to believe that she's using her illness to cover up an eating disorder. L.A. oncologist Dr. Nassir Yourman, who does not treat Giuliana, tells Star it's unusual for women to lose weight while on breast cancer medications. He explains, "When I look at my patients' own experiences with these drugs, most of them gain weight." ★

Setting A Scary-Skinny Example

An E! insider says it's rare to see anyone eating a meal on set. "You see these women nursing the same drink all day and not eating a thing. It's not normal."

IT'S HAPPENING

This isn't the first time TV stars have been desperate to shed weight to keep up with a costar. In 1997, waifish Calista Flockhart's trendsetting TV series, Ally McBeal, was a huge hit. Soon her fellow female cast members seemed to shrink down to her pin-thin frame, even developing eating disorders to not look big next to the show's size 0. As Portia de Rossi put it, "It was excruciating."

Scott Eastwood

Q&A

Saddle up for a heartbreaking romance starring the ruggedly handsome rising star who hails from Hollywood royalty.

FINALLY! After teasing the public for months with tantalizing modeling campaigns, beach selfies and intriguing yet small film parts, Scott Eastwood — the handsome and surfer-sexy son of Clint Eastwood — has his first starring role. He plays a struggling bull rider who falls desperately in love with a high-class beauty (Britt Robertson) in the new Nicholas Sparks—penned romantic drama, The Longest Ride. Scott, 29, talks about honoring his father's legacy and creating one of his own.

Was it easier for you to break into Hollywood because of your dad?

There's no "get successful quick" miracle plan in this business — whoever's son you are. There are perks to being the son of a famous father, but you have to work twice as hard.

Do casting people compare you to him?

People have been trying to get me to remake The Good, the Bad and the Ugly, with me in my father's role, but it has always felt so cheap. So I'm cautious.

Would you consider going ugly for a role?

Heck yeah! I'd happily shave my head or pack on the pounds.

I don't know about losing weight, though. I talked to Matt Damon and a bunch of other people about that, and they got really sick. My health is important to me. There are going to be roles that I'm not going to get because I look a certain way and roles that I'm going to get because of the way I look.

Are you a Nicholas Sparks fan?

I cried every time I saw The Notebook, and I saw it more than once! I'm a sucker for movies that make you think about life and how short it is. Sometimes we get caught up in this rat race, and we forget to pick up the phone, call the people we love and tell them we love them. Nicholas Sparks' movies always make me want to walk out of the theater and call my mom.

Have you ever been in love as much as your character?

It's a great thing if you get the chance to fall in love. Love is the most powerful thing in the world. But I'm single now. I like the fact that I can do whatever I want when I want.

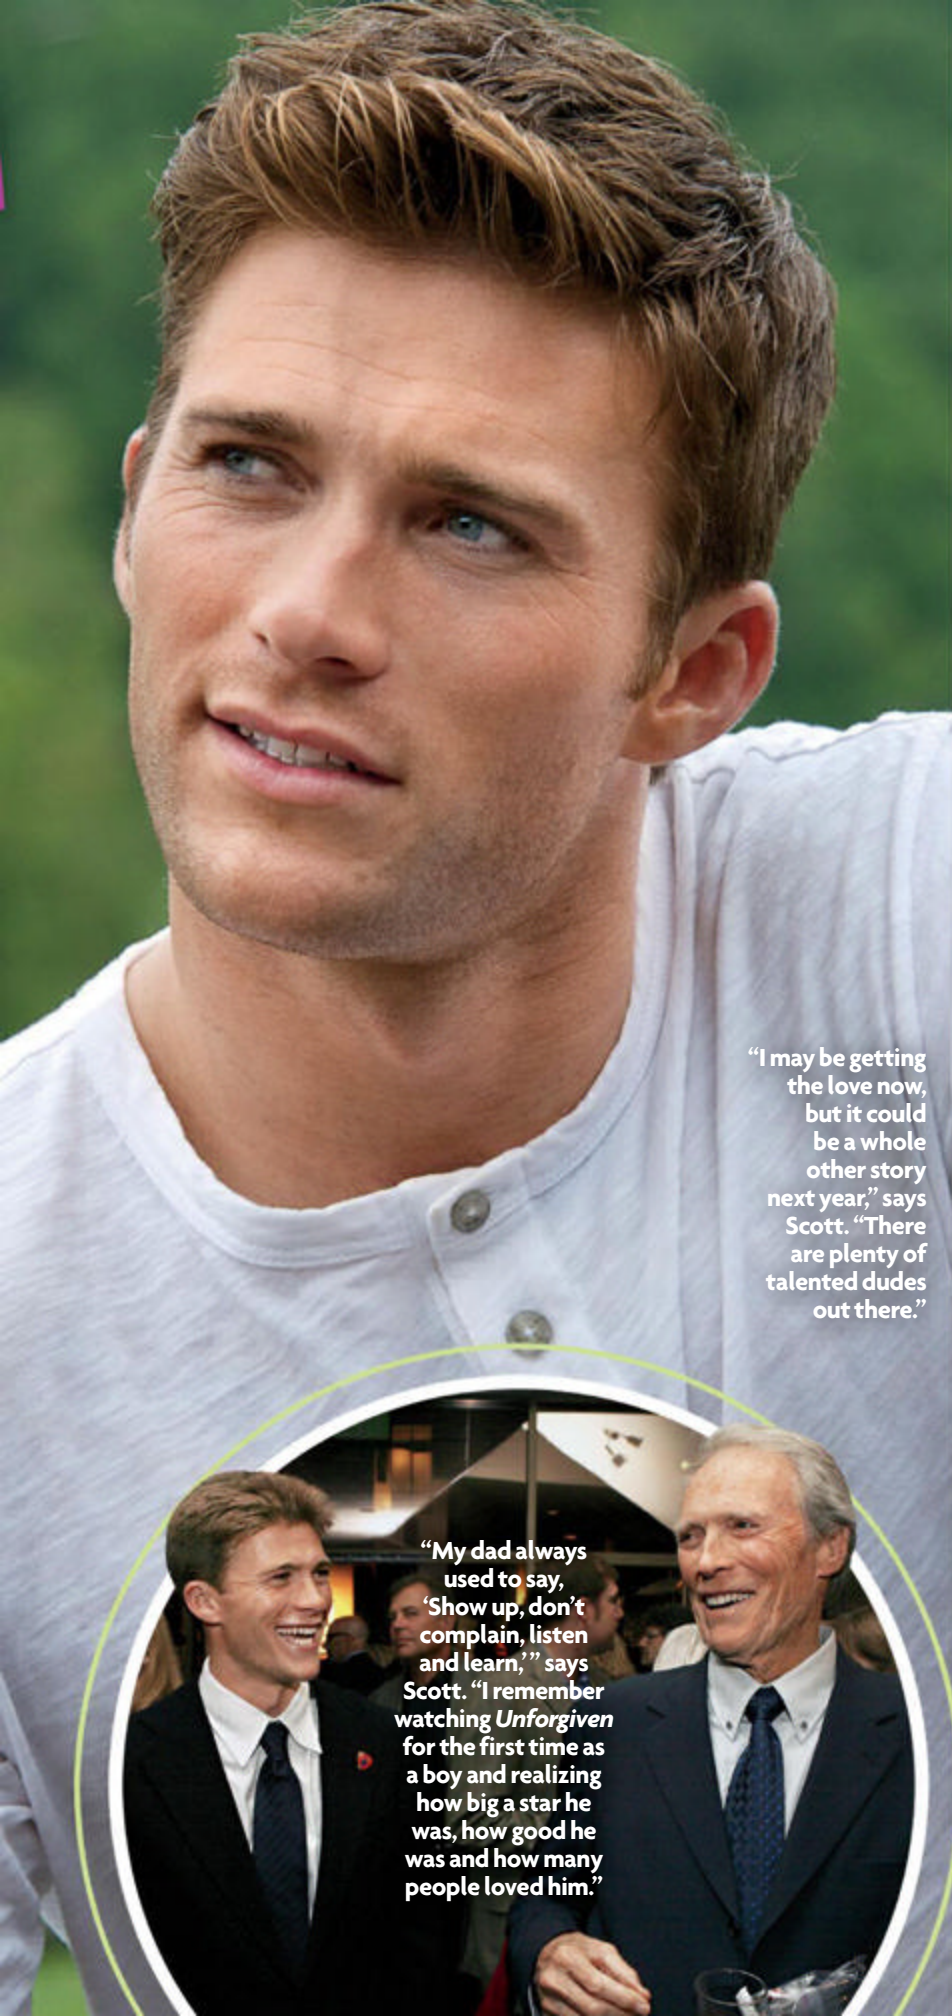

What type of woman turns you off?

I was casually dating this chick, and when she came to my house, all she could talk about was money. It was so unattractive, and I remember thinking, "I don't want you here anymore." All that material sh*t is so bogus. You have all this stuff, and then what? You die and people get your car and your jeans, and what does it all mean? ★

Scott and costar Britt Robertson.

"I may be getting the love now, but it could be a whole other story next year," says Scott. "There are plenty of talented dudes out there."

"My dad always used to say, 'Show up, don't complain, listen and learn,'" says Scott. "I remember watching Unforgiven for the first time as a boy and realizing how big a star he was, how good he was and how many people loved him."

Premieres Sunday, April 12, at 10:30PM on HBO

Like Frank Underwood on House of Cards, Selina Meyer (Julia Louis-Dreyfus) finds herself suddenly elevated to the presidency — where she's woefully unprepared for the velocity of the news-and-gossip cycle. Even as she trails in the primary race for the next election, she's scrambling to cover for the mistakes of her perpetually squabbling staff. And she soon discovers that, being continually in the spotlight, any casual remark could start an uproar. Meanwhile, her cadre of capable to buffoonish underlings — played by Anna Chlumsky, Reid Scott, Tony Hale and Kevin Dunn, among others — battle to keep their heads above water in the churning rapids of the media and big-league politics. Smart, cynically funny and amusingly dirty at times, this show's fourth season promises even more squirmworthy comedy moments than it's already produced. ★★★★★

→ SILICON VALLEY

Premieres Sunday, April 12, at 10PM on HBO

This is the continuing tale of computer nerds who are babes in the woods of big business and high finance. Having won a major tech conference challenge at the end of last season, the Pied Piper crew, led by the well-meaning yet timid-to-a-fault inventor Richard (Thomas Middleditch), now face the challenge of actually bringing the product — a compression algorithm that will revolutionize the speed and quality of all downloads — to market. Even as they seek funding from venture capitalists, they face a lawsuit from cartoonishly giant competitor Hooli (think Google), so Hooli can get there first. This ultradry sitcom manages to be of-the-moment and savvy while still wringing laughs out of the most juvenile interactions. The antagonistic camaraderie of programmers Kumail Nanjiani and Martin Starr and the clueless self-assurance of self-appointed leader T.J. Miller make for one hilarious comic program. ★★★★★

→ DAREDEVIL

Premieres Friday, April 10, on Netflix

The Marvel invasion continues with this new take on a masked crime-fighter based on the comic book hero Daredevil. Matt Murdock (Charlie Cox, above, with Deborah Ann Woll) was blinded in an accident at 9 years old but developed heightened senses that are more perceptive than sight. Now he's a defense attorney with a secret: He prowls the streets by night in a mask, battling criminals with his mixed martial arts skills. He's up against a criminal syndicate with many branches, all controlled by powerful businessman Wilson Fisk — a.k.a. The Kingpin (Vincent D'Onofrio). It's not just another series about an invincible guy with superpowers — he may have superior hand-to-hand skills, but he's willing to take a beating on his mission to fight bad guys. Look for Rosario Dawson as a nurse who rescues Matt and keeps his secret and Elden Henson as Matt's best friend, Foggy (the two have great comic rhythm). This show is so well done, even nonfanboys could get caught up in it. ★★★★★

→ KILL ME THREE TIMES

Simon Pegg and Alice Braga star in this fragmented tale of murder for hire in a small Australian town. Pegg is a professional hit man who finds himself caught up in multiple-murder plots involving a giant bag of cash. There's a nightclub owner (Callan Mulvey) who hates that his wife (Braga) is cheating on him (with Luke Hemsworth) and hires Pegg to kill her. Then there's the dim dentist (Sullivan Stapleton) with a bad gambling problem; his wife (Teresa Palmer) has a plan to fake her own death to pay off his debts — using the nightclub owner's wife as her stand-in. Gruesomely — sometimes cartoonishly — violent, it's also occasionally funny. But as tense as it can get, it feels like several unrelated ideas were smashed together in hopes of creating the illusion of coherence...and the seams show drastically.

LONG STORY SHORT: Three times? Once would have been plenty. ★★★★★

→ EX MACHINA

This futuristic sci-fi drama deals with the concept of a machine that can think, feel and speak for itself — and questions what gives man the right to switch it off. Enter Caleb (Domhnall Gleeson), a computer-coding whiz who wins a chance to spend time with tech mastermind Nathan (Oscar Isaac) at his lavish (and private) mountaintop retreat for a week. Caleb's there for a reason: to test a new artificial intelligence, Ava (Alicia Vikander), which walks around in a mechanical yet very female body. But when Caleb begins to fall for Ava, he finds himself in the middle of a very twisted game. Unfortunately, after a great buildup in the first 45 minutes, the film loses traction, relying more on atmosphere and effects than plot. And while the effects — Ava's body, in particular — are amazing, the second half of the film slows to a crawl.

LONG STORY SHORT: This tale of synthetic life feels too mechanical. ★★★★★

EMMA WATSON
Turns 25 on April 15

By Jennifer Angel

ARIES MARCH 21–APRIL 19

It's time to get down to business! Love and money both make the world go round — but they can be impossible to separate. Say how you feel, from your heart, but be prepared to compromise.

TAURUS

APRIL 20–MAY 20

To get your way, plan your approach and think in terms of what's in it for the other person. Family matters can get emotional when a situation finally comes to a head. In love, look for stability.

GEMINI

MAY 21–JUNE 20

Your head may be in the clouds, but keep your feet on the ground when looking for love. Friends can offer expert assistance to get you out of a tight spot.

CANCER

JUNE 21–JULY 22

When you do business with friends, make sure everyone knows what they are responsible for. Put everything in writing. You have an opportunity now to take stock of your personal life.

LEO

JULY 23–AUG. 22

Not everyone operates at the brisk pace you do, so even if your career is on the fast track, you need to be patient. It's a great time to focus on your image.

VIRGO

AUG. 23–SEPT. 22

Lasting relationships and job stability are better options for you than total independence and reckless fun. Keep your schedule flexible for family matters.

LIBRA

SEPT. 23–OCT. 22

After much turmoil, a new phase begins. Relationships sort themselves out, family drama starts to die down and extra cash finds your back pocket.

SCORPIO

OCT. 23–NOV. 21

Your work life enters a new chapter; what happens next can be a surprise — but a welcome one. A clash between work and home could have you rethinking where you are and where you want to be.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV. 22–DEC. 21

Life is full of compromises, especially when it concerns love. But when you find someone who makes your head spin and your heart flutter, the inevitable concessions will be easier to make. Follow your heart to find your inspiration.

CAPRICORN

DEC. 22–JAN. 19

Take a deep breath and review your life. Take stock of where you are, where you want to be and how you can go about getting there. Family matters may take a positive turn. There have been challenges, but the future looks bright. Be positive!

AQUARIUS

JAN. 20–FEB. 18

Make your own decisions; don't allow family or friends to interfere with your business, particularly love business. Your creativity is hot right now — and if you have a unique idea, tell superiors but make sure it has your name on it.

PISCES

FEB. 19–MARCH 20

A change at home can affect your professional life and bring permanency to both. Communication may be slow, but be patient. It's time to clean out unwanted people, stuff and situations — but when those you love need you, you're there.

Has Science Finally Discovered The Anti-Wrinkle Pill?

“Because it’s an oral compound that works systemically [throughout the entire body], it has the inherent capacity to improve the skin all over... not just on your face, but from the end of your nose to the tips of your toes.”

WHAT IF someone told you that you could take a simple pill and grow new, younger, vibrant-looking skin? Sounds like something from a sci-fi novel, right? Well... this European research breakthrough is not only backed by gold-standard science... it’s available now and with all the attention this revolutionary new compound is getting, I’m absolutely certain it will change the way we all take care of our skin. Although topical lotions and potions work on the outer layers of your skin, and that’s important (so don’t throw them away just yet), make no mistake about it, this exciting new pill can do what no topical cosmetic skin cream would ever dare claim to do: alter and improve the underlying structure of your skin... actually rebuild, repair, and regenerate new skin from the inside out... not just on your face but all over your entire body... younger-looking skin from the end of your nose to the tip of your toes.

WE’RE TALKING ABOUT ACTUALLY REBUILDING the skin’s cellular substructure with a pill... making the skin thicker and more cohesive, increasing both collagen and elastin, and even decreasing the depth, width and length of wrinkles. But most importantly, increasing skin density.

WHY IS IMPROVED SKIN DENSITY SUCH A BIG DEAL? Everyone knows that as we age, our skin gets thinner and looser (that’s why it wrinkles and sags more easily). But a major part of that problem is reduced skin density, not just thickness, but density. Think of it this way: hold a sheet of tissue paper and a solid sheet of regular paper up to the light. Both have the same thickness, but you can see right through the tissue because it’s much less dense. When it comes to your skin, you want the solid sheet of paper, because the more dense your skin is, the better it can resist damage from things like UV rays and pollution, and the less likely it is to wrinkle and sag.

AND, because the patented amino acid-based nutrient complex works systemically (throughout the entire body), it not only improves the skin on your face, it also has the inherent capacity to improve the delicate skin of the décolleté, crepey arms, saggy leg skin, loose abdominal skin... even buttock sag and elbow wrinkles. It’s sort of like a facelift for the entire body... actually changing the structure of your skin from within... making it younger as it repairs itself from the inside out. Amazing! See you at the cosmetic counter.

ANTI-WRINKLE BREAKTHROUGH

“It’s like a facelift for the entire body... actually changing the structure of your skin from within... making it younger as it repairs itself from the inside out.”

“If you’re in your late 20s or early 30s, you want to strengthen the fabric and texture of your skin to help slow down the aging process. If you’re in your 40s and 50s, you want to revitalize your skin’s underlying cellular matrix, repairing years of accumulated damage... your skin will not only look younger, it will be younger!”

THE UNILASTIN™ BREAKTHROUGH

Clinical Trial Participants Experienced:

Significant improvements in skin density (95.8%)

Significantly enhanced skin moisture (80%)

KYLIE'S

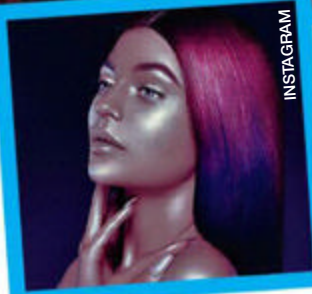

About Face

Social media was in a tizzy after Kylie Jenner Instagrammed a photo shoot, writing, "What I wish I looked like all the time." But some of her followers believed Kylie was being insensitive, likening her darkened complexion to appearing in highly offensive black face. To that Kylie later responded, "This is a black light and neon lights. People lets all calm down."

Talk about the luck of the Irish! During a concert in Belfast, hip-hop star Nicki Minaj brought 12-year-old fan Danny McGahey onstage, where he was soon overcome by emotion, telling Nicki, "I've been dreaming for this moment for so long!" and began choking up. That's when Nicki embraced the tween, which quickly perked him right up. Afterward, Nicki joked on Instagram, "Look at how he stopped crying when he laid his head on dem thangz. They have real power beaming out of them that can cure the sick."

Star WEEKLY AWARDS

We round up the week's best, worst and downright strange

* Strangest Firing

She may have won the Best Actress Oscar, but Julianne Moore couldn't quite cut it with the Turkish Culture and Tourism Ministry. The acclaimed star was reportedly fired from a short film meant to promote travel to Turkey due to "poor acting." Everybody's a critic!

* Steepest Fine

They didn't mind the crowds when they tied the knot last year. But these days, George and Amal Clooney want to be alone. Due to a new town ordinance, trespassers on the couple's Lake Como property must pay $600!

KEEP AWAY!

NOT AT HIS BEST

* Harshest Words From An Ex

When it comes to his ex-girlfriend Lindsay Lohan, Calum Best has no problem telling it like it is. The notorious bad boy recently admitted that his "combustible" romance with Lindsay "led to some of the worst moments of my life!" Ouch!

* Best Prank Call

Who's bad? Russell Crowe claims Michael Jackson learned the alias he used at hotels and prank called him relentlessly for three years. "He'd ring me and in a strong voice say, 'There's an emergency. You need to leave the building,'" he recalls. "I'd ask, 'Who is this?' And he'd say, 'Don't worry, Russell, just kidding, this is Michael.'"

* BIGGEST SELFIE HATER

Feel free to snap pics of Prince Harry, but don't stick your own face next to his. "I know you're young, but selfies are just bad!" he told a fan. "Just take a normal photograph!"
